

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Introduction	1
The importance of studying the media	1
McLuhan, media and literacy	2
What are 'the media'?	4
Which media should we be studying?	6
Teaching about the media	8
1 Getting started	11
Where does media teaching fit into the curriculum?	11
Curricular problems	15
Conceptual problems	16
Practical problems	19
Assessment problems	22
2 Media audiences	30
What is an audience?	30
Audience pleasures	38
How are audiences composed?	44
How are audiences addressed?	51
How is audience research carried out?	52
How do audiences respond?	60
Implications	63
Teaching ideas: Media tracking	68
Predicting and reflecting
Radio listening
Reading newspapers
3 The formation of facts	75
Reproducing reality	75

Public relations	84
Broadcasting	88
The press	92
Managing the news	97
Newsworthiness	100
Packaging people	106
Teaching ideas: The Battle of Osgrove	110
Coal dispute
Television news bulletins
A window on the world
Starting-points
4 Some forms of fiction	122
Media and imagination	122
Popular television drama	123
Children and media: dangerous liaisons?	136
The theatre of the mind	143
Magazines and comics	150
Literature: reading and responding	156
Teaching ideas: Responding to television	165
Soap networks
Radio and the imagination
Understanding comic conventions
5 Promotion and persuasion	171
Advertising and persuasion	175
Pop and promotion	197
Teaching ideas: Voice colours in advertising	215
Animals in advertising
Being a fan
Promoting personalities
6 Looking to the future	221
Changing media structures	221
Innovation in Media Education	227
Policies for development	228
Developing a coherent curriculum	230
The Media Studies specialist	238
The future of Media Education	240
Appendix 1: Getting help	242
Appendix 2: Questions for group discussion and individual study	248
References	253
Index	258