

Acknowledgements 7

Introduction 9

1. Between reality and the system of language: an overview of the past and present trends in semiotic studies 11

1.1. The forefathers of structuralism and cultural studies 11

1.1.1. Giambattista Vico and the ‘poetic’ savage 11

1.1.2. Sinn and Bedeutung: Gottlob Frege 12

1.1.3. Jean Piaget and his definition of structure 13

1.1.4. Ernst Cassirer’s philosophy of culture 13

1.1.5. The mystic semiotics of Pavel Florensky 14

1.2. The science of signs: two visions 19

1.2.1. De Saussure’s semiology 19

1.2.2. Peirce’s semiotics 20

1.3. The “golden age” of structuralism 21

1.3.1. Louis Hjelmslev and the Copenhagen School of Linguistics 21

1.3.2. Sapir-Whorf hypothesis 22

1.3.3. Claude Lévi-Strauss: the structural method in anthropology 23

1.4. Semiotics in Eastern Europe 24

1.4.1. Russian formalism 24

1.4.2. Bakhtin: from Dialogism to Post-structuralism 25

1.4.2.1. The dialogic in language 26

1.4.2.2. The architectonic model of the human psyche 27

1.4.2.3. Dialogism and polyphony 27

1.4.2.4. Carnival and grotesque 27

1.4.3. The Prague School of Structuralism 30

1.4.3.1. Jan Mukařovský’s semiotics 30

1.4.3.2. Roman Jakobson in Prague 33

1.4.3.2.1. Jakobson and poetics 33

1.4.3.2.2. The six functions of language 34

1.4.4. Jurij Lotman and the Tartu-Moscow School of Semiotics 35

1.4.4.1. The fundamental principles of the Tartu-Moscow School 36

1.5. Towards post-structuralism: the Paris School of Semiotics 37

1.5.1. Greimas and his semiotic rectangle 37

1.5.2. Roland Barthes 38

1.5.3. Julia Kristeva 40

1.5.3.1. The self and the subjective 40

1.5.3.2. Two modes of signification 41

1.5.3.3. Intertextuality 41

1.6. Marshal McLuhan: the poetics of mass media 42

1.6.1. Medium is the message 42

1.6.2. The tetrads 43

1.7. Umberto Eco and his theory of semiotics 44

1.7.1. The boundaries of semiotics 45

1.7.2. Some aspects of the theory of codes 45

1.7.3. Referential and extensional fallacies 46

1.7.4. Meaning as a cultural unit 46

1.7.5. Towards a new typology of signs 47

1.7.6. The aesthetic texts 49

1.8. Simulacra and Simulations: in the Land of Lone Signifiers 51

1.9. Conclusions 52

2. The Methodology: Analysing the Linguistic Picture of the World 53

2.1. The object of research 53

2.2. The scientific method 53

2.3. The linguistic picture of the world and analysing culture	54
2.4. The linguistic picture of the world and the basic communication model	57
2.6. Stereotypes and profiling in the linguistic picture of the world	58
2.6.1. The organisation of stereotypical knowledge	58
2.6. The role of Viewpoint and Perspective in the Linguistic Picture of the World	58
2.8. The role of the object and subject of seeing	60
2.8.1. The object of seeing	60
2.8.2. The subject of seeing	61
2.9. Viewpoint and the type of subject	62
2.10. Magic in the linguistic picture of the world	63
2.11. Lakoff and Johnson's approach to categorisation	64
2.12. Conclusions	65
3. The life and art of Andy Warhol	67
3.1. Pittsburgh years	67
3.2. Andy puts his Warhol on: Manhattan	69
3.3. Andy goes pop	73
4. The linguistic picture of the world in Andy Warhol's written works	77
4.1. POP ARTIST as the subject of seeing	78
4.1.1. A dictionary definition of POP ART	78
4.1.2. The POPE OF POP	79
4.1.3. Crossing the boundary of POP	79
4.1.4. The subject of seeing: visionary and eyewitness	80
4.2. The concepts of PERIPHERY and BOUNDARY in Warhol's linguistic picture of the world	82
4.2.1. The PERIPHERY of POP and Warhol's ability to 'nose out trends'	82
4.2.2. Working on the BOUNDARY	83
4.2.3. NOTHINGNESS: a password out of this world	84
4.2.4. The modern shaman: Warhol's OTHERNESS	84
4.3. I have a Brillo box and I say it's art. Towards the redefinition of ART in the context of the categories of SACRED and PROFANE	86
4.3.1. CULTURE versus NATURE	86
4.3.2. Re-culturation of commercial art	87
4.3.3. BUSINESS as ART and the linguistic picture of BUSINESS ARTIST	88
4.3.4. Types and tokens in commercial art	89
4.4. Warhol's concepts of POP STAR and SUPERSTAR and the Idealised Cognitive Model of STAR	90
4.4.1. Towards a cluster model of STAR	90
4.4.2. SUPERSTARS	91
4.4.3. The sacred model of STAR	92
4.5. The linguistic picture of MONEY	93
4.5.1. The modality of MONEY	93
4.5.2. Money canonised: negative SACRED?	93
4.5.3. Money as the causative force	94
4.6. I don't run the Factory, the factory runs me: on the subversive role of antimetabole in the linguistic picture of the consumer society	97
4.7. Delimitation of SPACE and TIME in Andy Warhol's linguistic picture of the world	98
4.7.1. Delimitation of SPACE	98
4.7.1.1. Personal space	98
4.7.1.2. Delimitation of a SOCIAL GROUP	100
4.7.1.3. Delimitation of HOUSE	101
4.7.1.4. Delimitation of CITY and COUNTRY	101
4.7.2. On some aspects of the delimitation of TIME	102
4.7.2.1. The eternal NOW	102

4.7.2.2. TV time 103

4.7.2.3. On the relation of GRAMMATICAL TENSE and SACRED
TIME 10