

Contents

Introduction	5
Chapter I. Business Environment and Accounting	7
1.1. Information as a Basis of Wise Decisions about Allocation of Resources	7
1.2. The General Concept of Accounting.	8
1.2.1. The Definition and Types of Accounting.	8
1.2.2. The Monetary Unit Assumption (Principle)	10
1.2.3. The Balance Method	10
1.2.4. The Entity Assumption (Principle)	13
1.3. Summary	14
1.4. Exercises	15
Chapter II. Balance Sheet: the Concept and Recognizing of Assets, Liabilities and Owners' Equity	19
2.1. The General Concept of Financial Statements	19
2.2. The General Concept of a Balance Sheet	20
2.3. Recognition Criteria of Assets	22
2.4. Recognition Criteria of Owners' Equity and Liabilities	25
2.5. The Actual Layout of a Balance Sheet in Accordance with the Accounting Act. . .	26
2.6. Summary.	31
2.7. Exercises	31
Chapter III. Business Transactions within the Accounting System (part I)	37
3.1. Business Transactions and Their Influence on the Financial Position of an Entity .	37
3.2. Measurement of business transactions.	40
3.3. Documentation of business transactions	41
3.4. Recording of business transactions	43
3.5. Summary	59
3.6. Exercises	60

Chapter IV. Profit and Loss Account 63

- 4.1. The General Concept of Profit (Loss), Revenues, and Expenses 63
- 4.2. Recognition and measurement of revenues and expenses. 66
- 4.3. The Division of Income 72
- 4.4. Summary 74
- 4.5. Exercises 76

Chapter V. Business Transactions within the Accounting System (part II) . . . 83

- 5.1. Recording Revenues and Expenses. 83
- 5.2. Transferring Revenues and Expenses to the “Net Profit (Loss)” Account 88
- 5.3. Summary 90
- 5.4. Exercises 90