

Contents

Preface

1 English Pronunciation Teaching: Global Versus Local Contexts

Part A

- A.1.1 Why Should Pronunciation Be Taught?
- A.1.2 Why is Pronunciation Teaching Often Neglected?
- A.1.3 Goals of Pronunciation Teaching/Learning
- A.1.4 EFL Versus ELF: English Pronunciation Models Debate
- A.1.5 EFL, ELF or NELF?
- A.1.6 Which Native Pronunciation Model?
- A.1.7 EFL Versus ESL
- A.1.8 Diagnosing the Local Teaching Context and Learner-related and Teacher-related Determinants of Pronunciation Instruction

Part B

- B.1.1 Attitudes to Accented Speech and its Users
- B.1.2 Native Accent Models or ELF? A Questionnaire Study
- B.1.3 Diagnosing the Pronunciation Teaching Context in Poland

2 Global and Local Pronunciation Priorities

Part A

- A.2.1 How to Establish Pronunciation Priorities
- A.2.2 Selected Proposals for English Pronunciation Priorities
- A.2.3 Focus on the Pronunciation of Phonetically Difficult Words
- A.2.4 Pronunciation and Spelling
- A.2.5 Segmentals Versus Suprasegmentals

Part B

- B.2.1 Intelligibility and Global Versus Local Errors
- B.2.2 Other Phonetically Difficult Words
- B.2.3 Pronunciation Priorities for Polish Learners

3 Pronunciation Inside and Outside the Classroom: A Holistic Multimodal Approach

Part A

- A.3.1 Developing Concern for Good Pronunciation
- A.3.2 A Holistic Multimodal Approach to Phonetic Training
- A.3.3 Selected Pronunciation Teaching Techniques
- A.3.4 Pronunciation Learning Outside the Classroom
- A.3.5 Providing Feedback
- A.3.6 Problems with Pronunciation Teaching Materials

Part B

- B.3.1 Motor Training Versus Cognitive Training

- B.3.2 Effectiveness Versus Attractiveness of Pronunciation Teaching Activities
- B.3.3 Employing Elements of Drama
- B.3.4 Phonetic Error Correction

4 Concluding Remarks

References

Index