

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Notes on Contributors	viii
Introduction Robert Murphy	1
PART ONE: DEBATES AND CONTROVERSIES	3
1. The British Cinema: The Known Cinema? Alan Lovell	5
2. British Cinema as National Cinema: Production, Audience and Representation John Hill	13
3. British Cinema's US Surrender – A View from 2001 Nick James	21
4. Paradise Found and Lost: The Course of British Realism Geoff Brown	28
5. Lindsay Anderson and the Development of British Art Cinema Erik Hedling	39
6. The Wrong Sort of Cinema: Refashioning the Heritage Film Debate Sheldon Hall	46
7. British Cult Cinema Justin Smith	57
PART TWO: INDUSTRY, GENRE, REPRESENTATION	65
8. British Film Censorship Jeffrey Richards and James C. Robertson	67
9. Exhibition and the Cinemagoing Experience Allen Eyles	78
10. Action, Spectacle and the Boy's Own Tradition in British Cinema James Chapman	85
11. Traditions of the British Horror Film Ian Conrich	96
12. Traditions of British Comedy Richard Dacre	106
13. British Cinema and Black Representation Jim Pines	118
14. Exiles and British Cinema Kevin Gough-Yates	125
15. Where Are Those Buggers? Aspects of Homosexuality in Mainstream British Cinema Stella Bruzzi	133
PART THREE: BRITISH CINEMA 1895–1939	143
16. Before Blackmail : Silent British Cinema Charles Barr	145
17. Big Studio Production in the Pre-Quota Years Jon Burrows	155
18. Late Silent Britain Christine Gledhill	163
19. The British Documentary Film Movement Ian Aitken	177
20. British Film and the National Interest, 1927–39 Sarah Street	185
21. A Despicable Tradition? Quota Quickies in the 1930s Lawrence Napper	192
22. A British Studio System: The Associated British Picture Corporation and the Gaumont-British Picture Corporation in the 1930s Tom Ryall	202
23. Low-budget British Films in the 1930s Linda Wood	211
PART FOUR: BRITISH CINEMA FROM WORLD WAR II TO THE 70S	221
24. The Heart of Britain: British Cinema at War Robert Murphy	223
25. Melodrama and Femininity in World War II British Cinema Marcia Landy	232

26. No Place Like Home: Powell, Pressburger Utopia	Andrew Moor	240
27. Some Lines of Inquiry into Post-war British Crimes	Raymond Durgnat	247
28. A Song and Dance at the Local: Thoughts on Ealing	Tim Pulleine	259
29. Methodism versus the Marketplace: The Rank Organisation and British Cinema	Vincent Porter	267
30. Bonnie Prince Charlie Revisited: British Costume Film in the 1950s	Sue Harper	276
31. 'Twilight Women' of 1950s British Cinema	Melanie Williams	286
32. Male Stars, Masculinity and British Cinema, 1945–60	Andrew Spicer	296
33. Beyond the New Wave: Realism in British Cinema, 1959–63	Peter Hutchings	304
34. Women and 60s British Cinema: The Development of the 'Darling' Girl	Christine Geraghty	313
35. Strange Days: British Cinema in the Late 1960s	Robert Murphy	321
36. 'Tutte e Macchio!': Excess, Masquerade and Performativity in 70s Cinema	Pamela Church Gibson and Andrew Hill	333
PART FIVE: CONTEMPORARY BRITISH CINEMA		341
37. 'New Romanticism' and the British Avant-Garde Film in the Early 80s	Michael O'Pray	343
38. Internal Decolonisation? British Cinema in the Celtic Fringe	Martin McLoone	350
39. Citylife: Urban Fairy-tales in Late 90s British Cinema	Robert Murphy	357
40. The More Things Change . . . British Cinema in the 90s	Brian McFarlane	366
41. Travels in Ladland: The British Gangster Film Cycle, 1998–2001	Steve Chibnall	375
42. Asian British Cinema since the 1990s	Barbara Korte and Claudia Sternberg	387
43. Bright Hopes, Dark Dreams: A Guide to New British Cinema	Robert Murphy	395
44. Not Flagwaving but Flagdrowning, or Postcards from Post-Britain	William Brown	408
Postscript: A Short History of British Cinema	Robert Murphy	417
Index		426