

CONTENTS

Prefacexii

Acknowledgmentsxv

1

EARLY CINEMA (1893–1914)3

Pre-cinema5

Photography 6

Eadweard Muybridge and Étienne-Jules Marey 7

The Edison Manufacturing Company and America's First Films 10

The Lumière Brothers and Robert Paul: Filmmaking Begins in Europe 13

April 23, 1896: Edison's Vitascope Debuts 13

Commercial Film Exhibition and the Birth of the Movie House 14

An American Film Industry16

The American Mutoscope and Biograph Company 18

The Motion Picture Patents Company Trust 20

The Move West 21

Movie Moguls and Movie Stars 23

Early Film Censorship 24

The Mutual Case: Movies and the First Amendment 27

Major Filmmakers in Early

American Cinema27

Georges Méliès and the French Invasion 28

Edwin S. Porter 30

D. W. Griffith 31

Mack Sennett and Early Film Comedy 35

Women and Early Cinema 38

2

THE SILENT ERA (1915–1928)43A Studio Industry Is Born45

Movie Stars: Mary Pickford, Theda Bara, and Rudolph Valentino 46

Movie-Star Scandals 51

Will Hays and the MPPDA 52

Moviemaking and Moviemakers53

D. W. Griffith 54

Cecil B. DeMille 59

Erich von Stroheim 63

Thomas H. Ince 66

F. W. Murnau 67

Studio Filmmaking 70

Women behind the Scenes 72

The Golden Age of Film Comedy74

Charlie Chaplin 74

Buster Keaton 80

Harold Lloyd 84

Laurel and Hardy 87

3

TECHNICAL INNOVATION AND INDUSTRIAL TRANSFORMATION (1927–1938)91Technical Innovations: Sound and Color92

Warner Bros. and the Conversion to Sound 94

Early Experiments with Sound on Film 94

Early Silent-Sound Hybrids 96

The Jazz Singer: Making the Transition to Sound Necessary 96

Tinting and Painting by Hand 99

Technicolor 100

The Studio System102

The Contract System: A System of Contracts 103

Studio Producers and Studio Styles 104

Irving Thalberg, Boy Wonder 106

Darryl Zanuck and the Warner Bros. House Style 108

Censorship: Regulating Film Content110

1927: The List of "Don'ts" and "Be Carefuls" 111

1930: The Motion Picture Production Code 111

1930–1934: The Studios Resist the Code 112

1933: The Catholic Legion of Decency 117

1934: The Production Code Administration 117

Genre and Studio Hollywood118

The Gangster Film 118

Melodrama 123

Horror Films 128

The Musical	131
Early Sound Comedy	137
Romantic Comedies	139

4

HOLLYWOOD IN TRANSITION (1939–1945)147

1939–1941: The Last Best Years149

Gone with the Wind	151
Citizen Kane	156

A World at War161

World War II Hollywood	164
Selling the War	164
Topical Features	165

Genre in Wartime Hollywood168

The Woman's Picture	168
Studio Comedies: Preston Sturges	172
Lowbrow Comedies: Abbott and Costello, Hope and Crosby	177
Early Film Noir	178

Transcending Genre: Three Key Films180

Casablanca	183
Meet Me in St. Louis	185
The Best Years of Our Lives	190

5

ADJUSTING TO A POSTWAR AMERICA (1945–1955)193

Reinventing Hollywood194

The Paramount Decision	195
The Hollywood Blacklist	197

Genre: Film Noir201

The Noir Visual Style	203
Narrative Form and Ideology in Film Noir	203
Noir and the Hollywood Left	207

Transcending Genre, Transcending Hollywood209

Orson Welles	210
Howard Hawks	215
Billy Wilder	218
Elia Kazan	222
Max Ophüls, Sam Fuller, Nicholas Ray, and Douglas Sirk	225

Behind the Camera, Behind the Scenes: Women in Hollywood228

Women Screenwriters	228
Ida Lupino	229

6

MOVING TOWARD A NEW HOLLYWOOD (1955–1967)233

Industry Shakeup235

- Movies versus Television 235
- The Big Hollywood Buyout 236
- Revisiting and Revising the Production Code 238
- Movie Censorship and the Courts 242
- Jack Valenti and the New MPAA 243

Genre247

- The Western 247
- John Ford and John Wayne 249
- Teenagers and Teen Movies 250

Transcending Genre, Transcending Hollywood258

- Alfred Hitchcock 258
- Jerry Lewis 264
- From Marilyn Monroe to Doris Day 266

Two Key Films272

- Bonnie and Clyde* 272
- The Graduate* 276

7

A HOLLYWOOD RENAISSANCE (1968–1980)281

Reinventing Hollywood283

- The 1968 Voluntary Film Rating System 283
- The Box-Office Recovery 284
- The Astonishing Popularity of Pornography 287

Major Films and Filmmakers of the Auteur Renaissance289

- Easy Rider* 289
- The Godfather*, Parts I and II 291
- Chinatown* 299
- Martin Scorsese 301
- Robert Altman 306
- Stanley Kubrick 308
- William Friedkin, Peter Bogdanovich, and Terrence Malick 313
- George Lucas and Steven Spielberg 319
- The End of Auteurism: Apocalypse Now and Heaven's Gate 322

American Genre Cinema327

- The Ultraviolent Western 328
- The New American Horror Film 331
- Comedy Stars and Comedy Films 336
- Blaxploitation 342
- The New Woman's Film 347

8

A NEW NEW HOLLYWOOD (1981–1999)351A New Corporate Hollywood353

The Kerkorian Case 353

The Screen Actors Guild Strike 354

The Battle over the VCR 355

The Capital Service Case 355

The Time Warner Merger 356

Genres and Trends359

The Action-Adventure Film 359

Comic-Book Adaptations 365

Science Fiction 366

Comedy 368

Auteur Filmmakers372

Steven Spielberg and George Lucas 372

Oliver Stone 376

Spike Lee 380

Tim Burton, David Lynch, and Adrian Lyne 381

Quentin Tarantino 385

Independents and Independence387Independent Auteurs: Joel and Ethan Coen, John Sayles, and Steven Soderbergh 390

Independent Women Making Movies 394

9

THE END OF CINEMA AS WE KNOW IT
(1999–2006)401*The New New Hollywood403

Consolidation and Conglomeration 403

New Marketing Strategies for a New Film Market 405

Release Strategies 406

New Exhibition Formats and Technologies 408

Films and Filmmakers: Industry Trends410

Blockbusters and Box-Office Hits 410

Twenty-First-Century Auteurs 415

Independents and Independence 420

Source Material and Suggestions for Further Reading427*Glossary433*Credits451*Index455